ALEK POPOV

Alek Popov was born in Sofia, Bulgaria, in 1966. He studied in the elite classical gymnasium in Sofia, graduated from St. Constantine Cyril the Philosopher College for Ancient Languages and Cultures in Sofia and later received his master's degree in Bulgarian language and literature from the Sofia University. In 1997, he attended the English Language Institute at Wayne State University.

His first novel, Mission London, was published in 2001. It has been widely acclaimed as "the funniest contemporary Bulgarian book" for its sarcastic projection of the diplomatic elite. So far, it has been translated and published into 12 languages. A film based on the novel was released in 2010.

Popov's second novel, The Black Box, was published in 2007. It came out in German under the title Die Hunde fliegen tief (Dogs Are Flying Low) and in English. In January 2014, The Black Box won the 2013 U.K. contemporary Bulgarian novel contest of the Elizabeth Kostova Foundation, organized in cooperation with Peter Owen Publishers. The book has also been translated in Serbian, Turkish, Polish and Italian.

Popov's third novel, Sister to the way of the new world (2013), headed the Top 10 list of best-selling titles in Bulgaria, and won the 2013 Helicon Prize for new Bulgarian literary prose.

Over the years, Alek Popov has published 6 collections of short stories. These collections were published by the German publisher Deutsche Taschenbuch Verlag under the title For Advanced. They have been translated into German, Hungarian, Polish, Serbian, Czech, French, Danish, English and Turkish.

Alek Popov has won several literary awards including:

- the National Radio's Pavel Veshinov Award for the best criminal short story;
- the Graviton Award for best science fiction;
- the Raško Sugarev Award for best short story;
- the prize Helicon for best prose book of the year, 2002 and 2013;
- the annual prize of Clouds magazine for the English translation of Mission London, 2004;
- the National Prize for Drama Ivan Radoev;
- Elias Canetti Prize for his novel The Black Box, 2007;
- The Flower of Helicon Award;
- the United Bulgarian Banks Award for book of the year 2007.

In October 2012, Alek Popov was elected a corresponding member of the Bulgarian Academy of Science in the field of Arts. He serves in the board of the Bulgarian PEN Center and is part of the editorial body of the prestigious literary magazine Granta Bulgaria.

The new satirical novel by Alek Popov: a modern story that explores society by means of irony, in which everyone gets what they deserve.

An elderly man dies in a remote Bulgarian village. He is 92 years old, he is the last person living in the village and no one would have noticed his death, were it not that, due to it, the country's population fatally falls below 7 million people, leading the demographic decline in the EU and triggering waves of panic in national politics. People are starting to wonder: are we going to disappear? Will there still be any Bulgarians in the next hundred years? Is it the fault of democracy or the EU?

The country's president - a staunch nationalist facing re-election - is determined to do something. Of course he could open the doors of the country to thousands of migrants, but he cannot do it, because he was elected promising that Bulgaria would be open to Bulgarians only. But where to find them, when those who have emigrated do not want to return? So the president sends an anthropological expedition to find Bulgarians around the world for him to take home. After a short time, anthropologists proudly report that in a remote region of Central Asia they have found a population resembling the Proto-Bulgarians who left some 70 generations ago. The president is thrilled. Firstly, if these people get Bulgarian passports, it means that the country will have 7.5 million people again; and secondly, he could make a deal for them to vote for him in the next presidential election...

Original Language: Bulgarian

From dog walker to millionaire, from millionaire to dropout: two brothers from Bulgaria seek their fortune in America and, in the end, find their father's ashes.

A small black box full of ashes is all that Ned and Ango, two very different brothers from Bulgaria, have left of their father. It has been 15 years since their father, a mathematician hovering between genius and madness, died under mysterious circumstances in America as a visiting professor. Their father has long been nothing more than a ghost to them until the paths of the two brothers cross again, far from their homeland, in New York. Ned, the good-for-nothing, has made it to the top on Wall Street while Ango, the smart one, walks dogs for snobs in Central Park. But then the tide turns and the ghost of their father suddenly comes to life again.

Alek Popov does away with old fairytales. His new novel was at number one for weeks in the bestseller lists in Bulgaria. It is a satire of gold diggers in the West and the East, of the yearning for happiness shared by successful people and underdogs, and of the wrong impressions we immediately form of each other when a world divides us. East or West, top or bottom, dead or alive: let us be brothers! Racy, witty and damned bite-eager.

A two episodes story.

Although the second novel can be read on its own as a separate piece, the two parts together form a kind of a saga encompassing the period between 1943 and 1953 and an ironic gaze on one of the most dramatic episodes in European history: Partisan movement and the communist propaganda.

In Palaveev sisters: In the storm of history, the eponymous twin teenage sisters from middle class backgrounds, Kara and Ira, are on the run from the authorities. They have joined a Partisan group based in the Balkan mountains. The Partisans are a mixed bunch of young and old communists and Peasant party members, all dedicated fighters against the Bulgarian monarchist regime and their German allies. Many have adopted colourful nicknames and Commander Medvev, who is a former refugee, speaks Bulgarian with a heavy Russian accent.

From the start, the pretty twins seed confusion in the hearts of the fighters. Only a few hours into their adventure, the rebels are attacked by government forces, led by the fearsome captain Night. The few survivors find safety in the Forbidden Wood. Lost in the mountains on the border between Bulgaria and Serbia, the twin sisters Kara and Ira are left to the mercy of the elements and separated.

The Cold War finds the Twins on the opposing sides of the Iron Curtain..

Original language of both novels: Bulgarian

Palaveev Sisters: On The Way To The New World is a new chapter of the story.

The plot unfolds following the audacious lives of both sisters. As their life gets more complicated, the sisters grow and evolve from teenagers into young women. Their characters deepen, as do their sexual experiences. The spell of ideology dwindles to give way to a strife for individual freedom – the mark of the imminent 1960's. Kara returns to Sofia hoping to reconcile with her parents and just to witness a bomb hitting the house before her eyes and killing her parents. During a raid, Kara is turned in to the police but with the help of a senior party activist she manages to escape. "Uncle" Angel will however prove himself unworthy of trust. Ira has lost her memory and the partisans give her the nickname Snejana (Snow). After a passionate but brief love affair with a Yugoslav partisan commander, Ira is rescued by a downed British airman, Ralph, who leads her to London with him and where they get married. Kara's fate, too, is linked to London, where she joins a KGB officer to his new assignment.

The year is 1953, only a few weeks after Stalin's death. During mass at the Brompton Oratory, a mysterious young lady (Ira) approaches the altar of St. Valfre and takes out a small container from under the statue. It contains an encrypted message. A few hours later, she enters the "King's Coffin," a bar in Soho, where her sister is waiting... the most unexpected of double agents. Overcoming old grievances, Popov writes with a healthy sense of humor (pitch-black at times!) and profound irony, going way beyond the picking of sides in an effort to grasp the internal paradox of human nature.

One of the most important novels of the intellectual wave in Iranian literature.

White Red is a narrative of people whose destinies become intertwined in January 1980 in the chaotic post-revolutionary Tehran. The main character of the novel, who's the juncture of all incidents, is a thirty-three-year-old Kyokushin practitioner who should fight fifteen battles for the black belt: an average clerk of the statistics office with his ordinary life, Kyokushin has put all his effort into the fight for earning the black belt which is all he's got now. His story opens the gate to bizarre events taking place in the context of actual historical events, each one of them opens the door to the lives of people each disclosing a mysterious history: The secret life of Guita, an ambitious superstar in the pre-revolution cinema of Iran where her bold roles resulted in the anger of the extremists after the revolution; the fears and hardships of a Greek priest who's in charge of returning the nuns to Europe after the revolution; an old Jew who intends to purify his blood even by going into a pool full of leeches; the internal battle of a religious old woman for adopting the bastard sons of two dead members of the Mujahedin; a poor balloon seller whose wishes are realized overnight due to people's superstitious beliefs; and the last Iranian ambassador in Dublin who's forced to hide the first Pahlavi king's bones so that the revolutionaries won't be able to lay a hand on them.

It's a breath-taking and fascinating novel about the accidental yet interconnected encounters of people who have come together in one historical era.

Mehdi Yazdani Khoram has been writing in popular reformist papers as a literary critic for years and is also the editor-in-chief of Tajrobeh magazine. He has won many awards for his novels and has been nominated for many others, including 7 Eghlim Literary Award, Bushehr Literary Award, Forty Literary Awards, Mehregan Literary Award, Vav literary award, and etc... White Red has been reprinted eight times in four years and won Forty Literary Awards. His previous novel, I love Manchester United, has been reprinted ten times in eight years and translated into Turkish and Italian. His style is similar to that of Louis-Ferdinand Céline. A Turkish critic, Omar Ilhan, has compared him to John Dos Passos.

A portrait of Rome and its leading personalities in the roaring 70's.

Cinecittà, the seafront of Ostia the neighborhood of Pigneto during a late dolce vita: cinema, Fellini, foolish actors and tender Roman summer nights vividly pictured through the eyes full of wonder of young Tommaso, who has just arrived in the Capital to pursue a career in journalism.

Rome in all its glory welcomes him to his scandals and gossips, the glittering lights shining on its starlets and famous actors, each one of them after their own dream of success. In this dreamy scenario Tommaso meets Judy, an English girl trying to become an actress, with whom he shares the hazy space between being spectators of one's own life and getting to be protagonist.

Nicola Manuppelli is a writer, translator and curator. Among the authors who were translated and published in Italy thanks to his scouting: Andre Dubus, Charles Baxter, Jane Urquhart, Roger Rosenblatt and Don Robertson. His articles appeared on the Chicago Quarterly, Numéro, D di Repubblica. He has published two novels, a collection of poems and several short stories published in anthologies both in Italy and US.

Shortlisted for Premio Bergamo 2021, Special mention for 32nd Premio Calvino and Finalist of the Premio Fondazione Megamark, The Pellicanis is a rare novel of great narrative richness.

Young Pellicani is a chatterbox. He shows up one evening late in his father's home, the home he had left twenty years earlier after stealing savings from a drawer. The building -a six or seven-storey condominium- is almost in ruins. But the name "Pellicani" on the top floor door bell is still there, the door barely ajar. Young Pellicani - in a slightly torn gray suit, a briefcase just to add some character- plans to stay one night then go: he has business in China, he claims. Father will have forgotten the events of twenty years earlier and will gladly welcome him, he guesses, then finds an old man stuck in bed and thinks that it's not his father...

Sergio La Chiusa is a poet -his book Interred (LietoColle, 2005) was shortlisted for the 2006 Montano Prize- and a writer -his travel prose and excerpts from novels are featured in cultural magazines and blogs. I Pellicani was shortlisted at the XXXII edition of the Italo Calvino Prize, where he was awarded with the "Treccani Special Mention 2019" for its linguistic originality and expressive creativity.

"Rarely does the reading of a novel give so much pleasure for the writing in itself; and rarely such a narrative richness is so casually crammed into a single novel, in a single apartment, almost in a single room."

A very sad comic novel.

Domizio Pertica is a failed author, who has written twenty-six novels who only have one thing in common: the public failure. Domizio decides to give up writing and devote himself to another activity, as a private detective, and opens the Domizio Pertica Divination & Lies Uncovering & Alibi. Collaborators of the company, Venus Diomede, a blonde Prague girl in skimpy clothes, met in a filthy bar, with whom he shares the sad Turin attic, and an alcoholic Indian blackbird named Zappa. Nothing should be taken for granted in this novel, not even the fact that, as an animal, Zappa does not speak. The agency's peculiar aim is to provide alibis to offenders. But all that, which is written, is a lie in itself, misleading and dismantling its own tale during the telling, in a carousel of different realities which are funny and amusing, but carry an aftertaste of defeat and loss.

"A surreal narrative that owes a debt to noir literature, but also to South American magic realism, to the delusions of Venedikt Erofeev, to vodka and to a long tradition of texts representing chaos and frenzy in the global postmodern society." - Lorenzo Mazzoni on Il Fatto Quotidiano

"Agenzia Pertica" by Luca Ragagnin is an irreverent book that mocks the reader, a false thriller that - digression after digression - turns out to be an exercise in metaliterary awareness, a somewhat dreamlike, a little dizzy and reckless journey into the world of storytelling" - Alessandra Chiappori

Arcana 21 is a journey into the wonderful world of bookstores as seen from within. A long-time bookseller narrates his descent into the underworld of the book market with all its circus of grotesque and hilarious characters, as well as gruesome and surreal situations. Next to them another absurd group of characters make their show: The characters of the narrator's most beloved books, from Don Quijote to Siddharta and Don Ciccio Ingravallo, commenting and giving their prospective on the events. Mental images - or maybe perhaps not - those latter characters become more realistic than the real ones: their intervention breaks down the linear succession of events, linking them with irony and satire.

And then, suddenly, a third narrative thread casts light on the path to follow: a wisteria, which is born and blossoms, and whose destiny is firmly linked to that of the protagonist.

Shortlisted for Premio Strega 2019, and winner of the International Egi Volterrani Prize.

In this novel both victims and witnesses –be they humans, animals or things – are given the chance to speak in a catching dialogue delving into the depths of human nature. The setting is Pontescuro, along the river Po, in the lower flatlands where the fog always linger, in the north of Italy. The year is 1922, and Daphne, the beautiful and scandalous daughter of the local landlord, is found dead, with a red ribbon tied around her neck. This event unleashes envies and nastiness among the poor village dwellers, as the girl was desired by the same men who despise and deplore her and had gathered the hatred of their women. The landlord makes every effort to punish the culprit... well, a scapegoat more likely. Daphne had known power of seduction and had used it to take revenge against her father and those people who hated and desired her at the same time. Embarrassingly enough the one who won her heart was the village idiot, a countryside wanderer who would talk to birds, trees and rivers. An unacceptable bond, one that had to be broken by whichever means...

Through the short tales whispered by the wind, the priest, the bird, the village idiot, the jealous priest's housekeeper, the fog and the police detective, the story unfolds and truth comes to the surface, revealing the little horrors hidden in the depths of human hearts and their misery.

Little Berg lives with his mother. Grown-up Berg sees an industrial landscape from his window, among this two ages events take place. Objects become important and then irrelevant. Words substitute objects while the child changes names and identities. He has a father who owns a yellow Beetle with pink dots and teaches him the names of trees and mushrooms. He has grandparents in the city who educate him to the philosophical use of agnolotti and the contemplation of Lego blocks. He has sea-faring grandparents who accompany him in his growth, from a kitchen with a window overlooking the waves or from a magical closet. Berg grows up reshaping reality, in a continuous pouring of imagination.

As a child he has many "enemies", he gradually gets familiar with the metaphysical danger of objects, the inexorability of other people's thoughts, the years of lead. As a boy -amazed and incredulous -love and the awakening of an entire industrial city. As an adult, the strength and abandonment, the mute crowding and a loneliness that sizzles with its many inner voices. He finds God in a beach cabin - then loses him in an underground canteen.

A composable and intermittent story that jumps among the eras of Berg's life, which are also the eras of our recent history and which are, perhaps, the eras in the life of all of us, displaying the fragmented ego we all try to piece together.

The novel tells the story of a blind girl who has no connection to time or to other people, other than to her mother and the old house where they live. In the basement of this house, they prepare, mix, and package different Iranian traditional herbs. They sell these to Seyyed, an old herbalist; the only person who visits their house.

The young girl lost her sight seventeen years ago, during a mysterious event that led to the separation of her parents. In all these years, she has lived with her senses of smell and touch, feeling different plants and becoming familiar with their sometimes deadly powers. Her world has other occupants as well: the greatest novels of all time; Avicenna, the renowned Iranian philosopher and physician of the Middle Ages; and, of course, her mother with unusual beliefs, strange isolation, and a mysterious life story. The young girl searches the corners of this dark, quiet world to find missing pieces of her life, the shocking and terrifying pieces of a world where love and violence blend together. Everything is as usual until, one day, an unexpected event draws the girl and her mother outside the house, where she, for the first time, meets a young man, and this is the beginning of a storm that will lead to startling events...

Atieh Attarzadeh was born in 1984 in Tehran. She was raised in a family of physicians, but studied documentary film and earned a master's degree in film from University of Tehran. She primarily became known as a poet and painter, and her poetry collection won the prestigious "Shamlou Award" in 2016, and was selected for the "Reporters" poetry award.

Three recent college graduates in Tehran struggle to find their footing in this award-winning debut by Iranian journalist Nasim Marashi. Roja, the most daring of the three, works in an architecture firm and is determined to leave Tehran for graduate school in Toulouse. Shabaneh, who is devoted to her disabled brother and works with Roja, is uncertain about marrying a colleague as it would mean leaving her family behind. Leyla, who was unable to follow her husband abroad because of her commitment to her career as a journalist, is wracked with regret. Over the course of two seasons, summer and fall, the three women weather setbacks and compromises, finding hope in the most unlikely places. Even as their ambitions cause them to question the very fabric of their personalities and threaten to tear their friendship apart, time and again Roja, Shabaneh and Leyla return to the comfort of their longtime affection, deep knowledge and unquestioning support of each other. Vividly capturing three very distinct voices, Marashi's deeply wrought narrative lovingly brings these young women and their friendship to life in all their complexity. A manifestation of feminine spirit against an imposing history.

Nasim Marashi is one of the most popular Iranian writers of recent years. Her novel I'll be strong for you has been reprinted twenty times and won the Jalal Al-e Ahmad Literary Award.

A book for readers of Masters' Spoon River Anthology!

Frozen by Fire is a history in verse of the Triangle Shirtwaist Fire of 1911 and its aftermath.

The story spans more than a century, beginning with working conditions in New York's garment industry. It describes the events leading up to the fire and the fire itself, the effect of the fire on the country, and the boost it gave to labor organizers and advocates for women's rights. The fire's victims were almost all teenage girls, Jewish and Italian immigrants or their children. They died because the owners of the unsafe shirtwaist factory kept the doors locked so none of the workers could leave or walk away with any material. The story, rich in detail, is centered on accounts by survivors of the fire drawn from primary sources. The Public Broadcasting System has documented the fire as part of its American Experience series.

The disaster shocked the nation and helped push New York and later the U.S. to adopt better workplace-safety regulations, but it faded for a time as other tragedies claimed attention. Donald Kentop, now 80, studied history and education at New York University, which created classrooms in the renamed building where the workers had been trapped.

"Memory is the mother of the muses, and Frozen by fire is an important act of remembrance. The particularity of character and line, the complex resonance of the story told lend this book a grave beauty. A documentary, yes - but one transmuted by art." - David Mason, Colorado Poet Laureate, author of Ludlow, A Verse Novel

Khosro is the young son of a traditional family living in Tehran in the 1980s. He is in love with Afsoon, a girl living next door. Khosro's mother, a religious woman annoyed by her son's liaison, forces Khosro to take part to the Iran-Iraq war. Khosro leaves and never returns, neither alive nor dead. Now, twenty-two years later, Afsoon has become a professor at the School of Psychology. As a successful married woman, she is still trying to escape from dreams and fantasies she had with her lost love. On the advice of her influential, ambitious husband, Afsoon becomes Dr. Shirin Sarabi's - skilled psychiatrist - roommate to help her husband snatch his position as dean. However, Dr. Shirin Sarabi is also Khosro's younger sister, now 30 years old. After twenty-two years from his brother's disappearance, Shirin finds out that Khosro and Afsoon used to put their love letters on a walnut tree, the branches of which reached the courtyards of both of them. Khosro's mother hid the letters to cut off the connection between the lovers. Shirin reaches out to Afsoon to give her the letters she is due. But Afsoon, who can hardly control her mental state, still has no choice but to run away, even from this meeting. But eventually, everyone finds herself at the end of her rope...

Zahra Abdi is a prominent contemporary author and critic who holds a special place among Iranian female writers. Snail day is her first novel which has been reprinted several times since published by Cheshmeh in 2014. The Italian translation of the book was also well received. It was reviewed and praised at the Mantova Literary Festival. Many successful titles followed.

Being Forty is the story of a woman who is frustrated and feels unfulfilled despite a comfortable life and a very happy family consisting of her loving and understanding husband and a daughter. The unfulfilled life is the consequence of the Revolution that deprived her of continuing to pursue her passion: playing the cello and becoming a concert cellist.

She experienced a period of confusion, examining her life and the causes of her frustration and disappointment. This coincides with the arrival of her former fellow musician who had left Iran and later had become a world famous conductor in Paris. She goes to the store room where she had put her cello away all those years ago and starts playing again after twenty years. She and the conductor meet and the conductor encourages her to resume and continue with her playing for she had been a very talented and promising musician.

The story is every person's gains and lost, regrets and disappointment in life. It also reflects on the gains at the expense of what was lost.

It reads beautifully and often reminds one of the human touch that one finds in Alice Monroe's stories.

The novel takes place in Tehran. It narrates a day of a middle-class woman's life. She drives aimlessly in the streets playing with the idea of cheating on her husband. As she wanders in the city, she delves into her childhood and its odd happenings. She reviews her rough adolescence and also her platonic love for a man. And above all she thinks of Gandom; an old female friend who always seemed to be the opposite of her in terms of boldness, liveliness, and freedom of spirit, yet very much alike her. A great deal of emotional strain due to the abundance of memories and dilemmas overwhelms her. She lost touch with Gandom a long time ago and now on the verge of a rebellion begins to look for her. On the one hand, she wishes to be with another man; a man who was in love with Gandom years ago and probably has news of her now. On the other hand, norms, ethics, and even her child are giving her cold feet. I'm probably lost is a novel which depicts one of the most important issues of the middle-class women in big cities of Iran; those who, questioning the established ethics, are driven by the desire to rebel against the norms.

The novel won the Hooshang Golshiri Literary Award and was nominated for Press Critics Award for the Best Book of the Year at its publication. The publishing of the book created an unprecedented wave in the Iranian literature resulting in the comparison of Sara Salar's novel with Zoya Pirzad's works. Sara Salar is considered to be one of the most important figures of the new generation of female writers in Iran.

At the beginning of the Second World War, about one hundred and fifteen thousand Polish women escaped to Iran and were settled in cities such as Tehran and Isfahan to return to Poland after the war. However, when the war was over many of these women stayed in Iran. Referring to this historical event and the situation of today's Iran, Ensafi sets the stage for discovering forgotten pasts and emotions buried under the dust of time.

In those times Shamim Shamseh, a well-established and successful literature professor, lost the love of his life, Audrey, in unknown circumstances. Now with the appearing of Elisa - a Polish girl who has apparently come to Iran to track down her displaced grandma, he walks down the memory lane and relives his memories of Audrey or rather his assumptions about her. Elisa is aware that Shamim was once her mother's lover and wants to know about her mother's unknown side through his eyes. Shamim still yearns to unfold Audrey's secret and despite his wife and child's insistence to leave the turbulent Iran after the 2009 Iranian presidential election, he stays in the country and tracks down Audrey -or himself?- along with Elisa. In this quest, he comes to know about some aspects of himself and of people around him, which were formerly unknown. Would Audrey be the same as before?

Mostafa Ensafi's highly praised novel has been reprinted three times so far.

English extract available. Italian full text available.

Endlessness is a psychological and political novel. It is a mystery that narrates the lives of those modern Iranian women who are threatened by insecurities and for whom trust is an out of reach commodity. The multi-layered social insecurity depicted in the novel involves love, hatred and politics in a whole.

The story takes place on a girl-only university campus in today's Tehran. Lyan, a zestful, brave-hearted southern girl disappears all of a sudden. Soulmaz, a cowardly and cautious girl from Tabriz, cannot overlook this incident despite her inherited passivity and conservativeness. No one knows what's become of Lyan. There are rumors of her political involvement. Soulmaz sets on a quest to find her going through every corner of her life and all the people related to her. She even sets foot in terrifying neighborhoods in Tehran. In her quest, she encounters things she never dreamt she would come across. She faces her own true self and that of people around her... Each one of Lyan's acquaintances carries secrets that uncover parts of her life but there is more mystery to the girl... Is Lyan alive?

Endlessness has been written in the context of the political state of contemporary Iran. It pays special attention to the powerful political movements in universities in recent years, which carried many people away with them overnight and dissolve them somewhere in the history.

Zahra Abdi, born in 1974, has written four novels so far. Endlessness was nominated for the best novel of the year in most literary awards such as Ahmad Mahmoud Literary Award and 7 Eghlim Literary Award.

Written when Anaïs Nin was in her twenties and living in France, the stories collected in Waste of Timelessness contain many elements familiar to those who know her later work as well as revelatory, early clues to themes developed in those more mature stories and novels. Seeded with details remembered from childhood and from life in Paris, the wistful tales portray artists, writers, strangers who meet in the night, and above all, women and their desires.

These experimental and deeply introspective missives lay out a central theme of Nin's writing: the contrast between the public and private self. The stories are taut with unrealized sexual tension and articulate the ways that language and art can shape reality. Nin's deft humor, ironic wit, and ecstatic prose display not only superb craftsmanship but also the author's own constant balancing act between feeling and rationality, vulnerability and strength. Perhaps more than any other writer of the twentieth century, she mastered that act and wrote about it on her own terms, defying the literary and social norms of the time.

Anaïs Nin (1903–1977) is an iconic literary figure and one of the most notable experimental writers of the twentieth century. As one of the first women to explore female erotica, Nin revealed the inner desires of her characters in a way that made her works a touchstone for later feminist writers. Swallow Press is the premier US publisher of books by and about Nin.

A transplant from Vienna to Malibu who is driven by her urge to observe and depict those around her, Renate is "the freest woman I know." Working at the Paradise Inn restaurant, she encounters a series of people whose stories make up a larger collage: Henri the chef; Count Laundromat; Varda the artist and his teenage daughter, Nobuko the actress; the French Consul in the Hollywood Hills; an aged lifeguard with a spiritual longing for the sea; and Bruce, the intimate friend with an unnerving secret. First published in 1964 and now reissued with a new introduction by Anita Jarczok, Collages showcases Anaïs Nin's dreamlike and introspective style and psychological acuity. Seen by some as linked vignettes and by others as a novel, the book is a mood piece that resists categorization. Based on a close friend of Nin's, Renate is the glue that holds the pieces, by turn fragmentary and full, together. One character absorbs a lesson from the Koran: "Nothing is ever finished." With each of Renate's successive encounters, we take that message to be true.

And, of course, the diaries:

WINTER OF ARTIFICE

Three Novelettes

by Anaïs Nin

Ohio Swallow, 148 p

BULGARIAN, FINNISH, NORWEGIAN, ROMANIAN AND SWEDISH TRANSLATION RIGHTS AVAILABLE

Winter of Artifice was first published in 1945. The book opens with a film star, Stella, studying her own, but alien, image on the screen. It ends in the Manhattan office of a psychoanalyst - the Voice who, as he counsels patients suffering from the maladies of modern life, reveals himself as equally susceptible to them. The middle, title story explores one of Nin's most controversial themes, that of a woman's sexual relationship with her father. Elliptical, fragmented prose, unconventional structure, surrealistic psychic landscapes, presents an important opportunity to consider anew the work of an author who laid the groundwork for later writers.

Winter of Artifice represents a literary artist coming into her own, with the formal experimentation, thematic daring, and psychological intrigue that became her hallmarks.

"The lead female characters begin small and damaged and eventually emerge at the other side more complete people at the expense of the men in their paths. But Nin accomplishes this with such delicacy and style that one would swear there was no other way." - Bookslut

JOYCE CARY: THE TRILOGY OF ART and THE TRILOGY OF POLITICS

BESTSELLING AUTHOR

JOYCE CARY WAS AN ENGLISH NOVELIST WHO DEVELOPED A TRILOGY FORM IN WHICH EACH VOLUME IS NARRATED BY ONE OF THREE PROTAGONISTS WHO TELLS HIS PART OF THEIR INTERLOCKING EXPERIENCES AND REVEAL THEIR CONTRASTING PERSONALITIES. CARY'S BOOKS HAVE BEEN PUBLISHED IN BULGARIA, CZECH REPUBLIC, DENMARK, FINLAND, FRANCE, GERMANY, HOLLAND, HUNGARY, ISRAEL, ITALY, NORWAY, POLAND, PORTUGAL, ROMANIA AND SPAIN.

Cary's trilogy on art begins with the first-person narration of a woman, Sara Monday, in Herself Surprised (1941) and follows with that of two men in her life, the lawyer Tom Wilcher in To Be a Pilgrim (1942) and the artist Gulley Jimson in The Horse's Mouth (1944), his best-known novel. Monday is portrayed as a warm-hearted, generous woman who is victimized both by the conservative upper-class Wilcher and by the talented but disreputable painter Jimson.

The latter character is a social rebel and visionary artist whose humorous philosophy and picaresque adventures in The Horse's Mouth helped make him one of the best-known characters in 20th-century fiction: The Horse's Mouth, famously filmed with Alec Guinness in the central role, is a portrait of an artistic temperament. Its principal character, Gulley Jimson, is an impoverished painter who bothers little about conventional values. His unquestioning certainty that he must live and paint according to his intuition without regard for the cost to himself or others makes him a man of great, if sometimes flawed, vision.

Cary's second trilogy is seen from the vantage of a politician's wife in A Prisoner of Grace (1952), the politician himself in Except the Lord (1953), and the wife's second husband in Not Honour More (1955).

"Whenever I am idle I choose a Cary novel in the way I might seek a friend's company, and it is not long before I am encouraged, inspired to write." Paul Theroux

"A splendid writer." John Updike

Joyce Cary was born in 1888 into an old Anglo-Irish family. He served in the Nigeria Regiment during the First World War. His time in Africa provided the inspiration for his early novels. At the time of his death in 1957, he was recognised as one of the leading novelists in the world. However he was also a fine short story writer, essayist and poet.

MISTER JOHNSON

Johnson, a young African, is assigned as clerk at a British district office in Fada, Nigeria. He is from a different district and is regarded as a foreigner by those native to the area. Johnson works his way into local society, marrying there only one wife- he was monogamous-, but never really fitting in. The district officer, Rudbeck, meanwhile, conceives the notion that a road linking Fada to the main highway and larger population centers will be of great benefit to the region. Johnson, as Rudbeck's clerk, also becomes enthused about this project. Johnson is one of Cary's joy-filled characters, possessor of a great energy that infects all around him. People are drawn to Johnson and follow him without realizing that they are being led. Indeed, Johnson has no clear idea of where he is going.

His mood infects Rudbeck and, when Johnson suggests how the books may be fiddled to support Rudbeck's road project, the colonial officer is seduced. Rudbeck and his superior work out the extent to which he can finagle road-building funds from the accounts and Johnson's infectious enthusiasm makes the road-building successful. But Rudbeck discovers that Johnson has been engaged in petty graft and dismisses him. Johnson turns to theft to support his lifestyle and, when discovered, kills the storekeeper where he has been stealing. Now Rudbeck must try Johnson for murder. The trial brings Rudbeck to the breaking point. Johnson is found guilty and begs Rudbeck to keep him from the gallows by killing him. Rudbeck follows his heart rather than the rules and does so, though the act will destroy his career and possibly have other ramifications, legal and personal, that lie beyond the closure of the novel.

The book was adapted into the 1990 film Mister Johnson starring Maynard Eziashi in the titular role and Pierce Brosnan as Harry Rudbeck. The film was entered into the 41st Berlin International Film Festival, where Eziashi won the Silver Bear for Best Actor.

An illustrated experimental novel.

We have always been taught that there are three dimensions to define space, that is the reality in which we live. A fourth dimension, defines the time that passes. It exists for an additional, little-explored dimension capable of making us travel through space and time. This is the dimension of memories.

Through poems, documents and drawings made in isometric axonometry, this book provides the basic instructions for travelling into space-time.

Born in 1985, Davide Passoni is a poet, illustrator and musician. Graduated in Fashion Design, social animator expert in Music Therapy, former lifeguard, he has been attending the Poetry Slam stages since 2005. WINNER OF THE WRITERS' GUILD
BEST FIRST NOVEL AWARD 2021

A riveting, thought-provoking speculative literary novel exploring the impact of the AI revolution through the eyes of three very different young women.

Lal, Janetta and Rose are living in a time of flux. Technological advance has brought huge financial rewards to those with power, but large swathes of the population are losing their jobs to artificial intelligence, or auts, as they're called. Unemployment is high, discontent is rife and rumours are swirling. Many feel robbed – not just of their livelihoods, but of their hopes for the future. Lal is languishing in her role at a coffee shop and feeling overshadowed by her quietly brilliant sister, Janetta, whose Ph.D. is focused on making auts empathetic. Even Rose, Lal's best friend, has found a sense of purpose in charismatic up-and-coming politician Alek. When vigilantes break in to the coffee shop and destroy their new coffee-making aut, it sets in motion a chain of events that will pull the three young women in very different directions. Change is coming – change that will launch humankind into a new era. If Rose, Lal and Janetta can find a way to combine their burgeoning talents, they might just end up setting the course of history.

Eli Lee is fiction editor and writes essays and reviews for magazines and newspapers. Among her works, Today was longlisted for The White Review Short Story Prize in 2016 and performed at Unsung Stories Live.

It rains in Naples as the last ferry leaves from Porta di Massa to reach Ischia. Right there, in the port, Enzù and Tonino are meant to meet – an encounter that will change their lives forever. That moment seems to approach with the calm of night and the slowness of waiting.

As they wait, they talk about their city, about Pasquale Lumetta and Prévert. They wait and in the meantime their world breaks down and reassembles itself into small fragments of life. They wait and dream of Paris, which, like the moon for moths, is a bright spot that guides their movements, that pushes them to move forward.

Andrej Longo was born in Ischia in 1959. He has always written, but he held a plethora of jobs before being finally published. Among his books we remember the award-winning Dieci ('Ten'), winner of the Bagutta Award and finalist at the Bancarella Award, and L'Altra Madre ('The other mother'), recently released by Adelphi. He also writes for the theater, cinema and radio.

In spite of his very ordinary name, Mario is a truly unique character. Brilliant and original, in a way that people superficially define “weird”. His detachment from the rest of his peers and his resistance to conformity are mirrored by his bewildered uncle Eugenio and his picaresque existence.

Their singular lives are led against the background of a small city, Trevolto, where inexplicable, bizarre and even disturbing events defy the order of an otherwise perfectly ordinary country. The relationship between these two minds nephew and uncle becomes a dialectic of the truth, or at least of a personal interpretation of the world, where the meaning of what is happening seems to escape any attempt of comprehension.

Simone Battig is a writer and literary critic. Many of his short stories have appeared in anthologies and literary magazines over the past 20 years. He is also the author of the novels Fuck vitality today, Sul Nulla ('On nothing'), Neogenesis and Da quando non sono qui ('Since I'm not here any longer').

A USA Today Summer Reading Pick and a finalist for the Shamus Award, Over The Shoulder offers a unique view of the American protagonist and reluctant investigator, shaken from the doldrums of his insulated life. Choice and his partner, Paul Baumgartner, are security specialists for Silicon Valley executives. When Paul gets killed on the job, Choice and an inexperienced reporter, Linda Maldonado, begin looking into the puzzling circumstances of the murder. As they work together to unravel the intricate threads of lies and half-truths, they discover that his death might be linked to the mysterious death of Allen's father some twenty years earlier.

The other two titles of the series:

With his self-described “philosophy of removal” as his frame of reference, Choice searches for the hidden, long-buried answers, only to be outmaneuvered at every juncture. Against this backdrop of violence and deception, Choice soon discovers secrets that alter his understanding of his family.

“That I am a nobody doesn’t bother me as it might some people. I prefer anonymity, unobstructed movement through a crowd with neither a first nor a second glance in my direction.” Anonymity is both existential goal and survival skill for Allen Choice, who may call himself a Korean-American but who isn’t particularly comfortable with the label. A Silicon Valley security specialist, Choice drifts through life the way he drifts through crowds: detached, isolated, neither particularly fulfilled nor particularly unhappy. He notes wryly, “I used to think I was in inertial rest, a body at rest remaining so. Once an outside force applied itself to me, I would be in motion. I liked this idea. It freed me, relieving me of the responsibility. I just had to wait for an outside force. But I soon realized this was an illusion... I decided to call it the inertial deception. I can’t succumb to it.”

Leonard Chang’s first novel, entitled The Fruit ‘N Food, was published in 1996 and won the Black Heron Press Award for Social Fiction that year, and is now taught at universities around the world. His second novel, Dispatches from the Cold, won a San Francisco Bay Guardian Goldie Award for Literature. Crossings, his sixth, was published in 2009, and Triplines, was released in 2014. His latest novel, The Lockpicker was released in 2017. All these titles are available for translation.

A dark and misterious curse weighs on Poblenou neighborhood, in Barcelona. One morning a beautiful prostitute is found dead on the sand of the beach, with an expression of horror in her eyes and the mark of a rope around her neck. It's Katia Soloviov, born in unusual circumstances and brought up by the imposing Mama Asya, despotic owner of the neighborhood's brothel. When, days later, her funeral is to be held, the neighbors discover in amazement that the corpse of the young woman does not show the slightest sign of numbness or decomposition. Awestruck, people preach the miracle in the city streets, and Father Ramon sends one of his pupils to ask the Archbishop of Barcelona for advice. Meanwhile, Katia's body is deposited on the altar of Sant Bernat Calbó's church, where she receives daily the believers' visits from all over the country. One winter night, an individual named Serafi Carcosa, a disturbed man who lives in a shack near the beach, creeps in the church and stains the prostitute's incorruptible corpse. Next thing the neighbors discover is that the dead woman has got pregnant..

Thus how this novel begins and -from early nineteenth century to the present day- abridges the story of five generations, mingling satire, tragedy, fantasy, sex, humor, romance, violence. Katia and Serafi's descendants must fight against their own destiny, to finally unveil the crime that set in motion the curse that chases them and untangle the spell.

Francisc Bellart is a Philosophy professor and editor. The Indiscreet Editor, his first novel, was very well received by both public and critics.

His mother was a whore. His father, English. He had no last name when last name was the only mean to scare away hunger. Even so, a believer. Camacho insisted on earning his bread with the sole purpose of being honest. Everything went to hell, though. The pious whore, a mute Indian, a disbelieving friar and that honest bastard will try to steal the largest cargo in the history of the Spanish Indian fleet. Across the Ocean, in that recent Spanish empire where sun never sets, the Balvanera hauls were being filled with the most valuable merchandise of its time: "palo de tinte", dying wood, most coveted at a time when the royal houses, the nobles, the richest merchants of the old continent dressed in black. The ship will hold an immense fortune. Meanwhile, the grim reaper sought to collect debts...

Francisco Narla's first novel, Laín was a huge hit both in Spain and Latin America. Five more followed, all very welcome by the readers and appraised by the critics, which have made out of him one of the most known and considered Spanish novelists, awarded with the prestigious Premio Edhasa Narrativas Históricas.

The plot of this historical adventure revolves around a priceless stone dating back to the year 1330 BC. In the ancient kingdom of Ugarit, today the scene of the Syrian conflict, the young Yagurum carves his mother's sphinx and a text that remembers her on an agate stone, together with a secret, powerful recipe that makes the stone invaluable and starts a search that is going to last centuries.

Back to our days, Ann Carrington, an American professor of history and specialist in ancient civilizations, is hired by a Swiss colleague, who in turn works for a multinational pharmaceutical company, to try to make sense of a text that is missing a word. It is a reproduction of the text of the ancient stone, from which a piece has been broken, its secrets still undiscovered.

However, Ann's work will be much more than an archaeological investigation, which will eventually endanger her own life... as she ignores there's more than just the pharmaceutical company in search of the precious artifact.

Lorenzo de Medici is a direct descendant of the Medici family, one of the most important in history, whose patronage fostered the creation of the greatest works of the Renaissance, was born in Milan (Italy) and spent his childhood in Switzerland. A dark, disturbing and gripping read.

At the end of a soccer match, four old friends decide to set fire to a slum. There is no precise reason after the act, just the euphoria of the moment. Unfortunately, their bravado turns into tragedy and leaves indelible traces on all them. One of us is the account of these events, as seen and lived by all the characters involved, both the victims and the executioners.

A harsh book, a story of anger, hatred and frustration, which speaks of weak fathers, of their faults, of their useless repentance. It speaks of a town's soft underbelly, of its inexorable racism and impossibility of forgiving.

Daniele Zito is a novelist and a journalist. His contributions appeared on the Indice del mese and Che fare. His first novel was published in 2013, La solitudine di un riporto (Hacca). His second novel, Robledo (2017, Fazi) was translated and published in France. In 2018 the novel Catania non guarda il mare was released and published by Laterza.

A twisting new crime series set in the Scottish Highlands. For fans of Stephen King, Christopher Brookmyre and John Connolly. The body of a young boy is discovered at the bottom of a well that has been sealed for two hundred years. Yet the corpse is only days old. No one comes forward to identify #Boy9, and DI Ben Westphall's only suspects are the farmers on whose land the well sits. They certainly seem as though they have something to hide. But it might not be what he thinks. Soon, similarities from an old crime emerge and Westphall must look to the past to piece together the dark and twisted events taking place in the present.

Over the past twenty years, Douglas Lindsay has written twenty-three books, principally crime novels in the non-traditional style, including the Barney Thomson, DS Hutton, DCI Jericho and Pereira & Bain series. The first three books in the DI Westphall series, opening with Song of the Dead, are published by Mulholland Books, Hachette group.

A brand-new heartwarming Christmas novel from the beloved author of The tea room on the bay.

A snowstorm. A stranger. A spark. And it's Christmas! It should be the perfect start to the perfect love story. But real life is far messier and more complicated than in the pages of the books in Megan Taylor's family bookshop – the last few years have left this young widow in no doubt of that. Moving back home to York should have been a fresh start, but all it did was allow her to retreat from the world. When prize-winning author Xander Stone rams his supermarket trolley into her ankles and then trashes her taste in books, Megan is abruptly awoken from her self-imposed hibernation. It's time to start living again, and she's going to start by putting this arrogant, but sexy stranger at his place...

Rachel Burton has published three books with HQ (HarperCollins), and is now on a two-book contract with Aria, Head of Zeus.

An Amazon #1 bestseller.

When Mia inherits her beloved grandmother's summer cottage, Birch Thorpe, in Sweden, she faces a dilemma. Her fiancé Charles urges her to sell and buy a swanky London home, but Mia cannot let it go easily. The request to carry out an archaeological dig for more Viking artefacts, like the gold ring Mia's grandmother also left her, offers her a reprieve from a decision – and from Charles.

Mia becomes absorbed in the dig's discoveries and finds herself drawn to archaeologist Haakon Berger. Like her, he can sense the past inhabitants whose lives are becoming more vivid every day. Trying to resist the growing attraction between them, Mia and Haakon begin to piece together the story of a Welsh noblewoman, Ceri, and the mysterious Viking, known as the 'White Hawk', who stole her away from her people in 869 AD. As the present begins to echo the past, and enemies threaten Birch Thorpe's inhabitants, they will all have to fight to protect what has become most precious to each of them...

"Courtenay's writing brings the past vividly to life, using dual-period narrative to brilliant effect." - Historical Novels Review

1551. A buried secret emerges from the earth with a flower in her hair. The 16th century is marked by passion, blind faith and court intrigues: barbarian pirate ships infest the Mediterranean and Henry II, king of France, never renounced his ambitions of domination over Italy, relying on the discontent of the Neapolitan nobility, intolerant of the Spanish policy of the viceroy of Naples Don Pedro Alvarez de Toledo. In Salerno, the former conquistador Héctor of Extremadura is in the service of Prince Ferrante Sanseverino. The cannons of his ship sink down a French brig, and the commander is the only survivor. The man carries an encrypted letter with him and some documents that Héctor delivers to the stratigote Marcantonio Villano. A series of murders and the disappearance of the letter will shake the astute Isabella Villamarina, wife of Prince Ferrante and a devoted subject of Emperor Charles V. Her husband's alliance plans with the King of France are as ambitious as they are dangerous: accusation of treason would be their undoing. For Héctor it will be a complex investigation that will intertwine with another mystery: the discovery of the skeleton of a little girl, found in the garden of Costanza Calenda, a fascinating and expert herbalist. He will have to dig into a story whose roots go back to the expulsion of the Jews from Spain.

Carmine Mari made his literary debut with the novel Il regolo imperfetto, awarded the National Literary Prize "Borgo di Albori". He published the novel Hotel d'Angleterre, a spy story with a historical background, winner of the Literary Prize "Giallo al Centro".

Giovanni, apparently the more fragile of two brothers, suddenly disappears. A teacher in a high school, he dreams of being a writer. He is lonely, introverted, locked in a world of literature, in which there is no room for anyone else. His elder brother Francesco, a successful civil lawyer, has a completely different character, a large circle of friends, and goes from a love affair to another. His serenity and light-heartedness, however, collapse when he learns of the sudden and mysterious disappearance of his brother, and he immediately devotes himself to his search by all means. During the challenging search, contrasting feelings slowly make their way into his soul, especially when a beautiful woman, Lucrezia, appears in the story. From that moment on, the strings of emotions and events move around her, and the mystery of Giovanni's disappearance deepens more and more.

Through the flow of events full of anxiety and mystery, this novel investigates the folds of two brothers' souls, from their happy childhood to the unexpected and incurable cracks in the years of maturity, and eventually leads to an unexpected epilogue.

Vincenzo Esposito is a writer and a journalist. As a narrator he made his debut with the novel La festa di Santa Elisabetta (1999, "Calvino" Prize and "Foyer des Artistes" Prize), which was followed by The fifth season of the year (2001, nominated for the "Bigiaretti-Matelica" Prize), and four more narratives before this latest one.

She was the perfect neighbour. Until she made a terrible accusation...

When Matt and Imogen move out of the city, they're hoping for a much-needed fresh start. Matt throws himself into his new job, but Imogen struggles to adjust to life in the suburbs. She's grateful for the kind welcome from new neighbour Nancy, and they soon become close friends. So when Nancy makes a shocking accusation, Imogen doesn't know who to trust. This isn't the first time Matt has found himself on the wrong end of a false accusation... but is Nancy hiding secrets of her own?

As simmering tensions threaten to boil over, Imogen is in more danger than she realises. Can she uncover the truth before she loses everything? An utterly gripping thriller with a jaw-dropping twist, perfect for anyone who loved The Family Upstairs, Here to Stay or An Unwanted Guest.
